

Are there several people within your department that need training? Consider bringing a Resolution Video training class to your facility. For one low price, we will provide the instructors, equipment, and training materials for up to twenty students and cover the information you need to know.

Facility Requirements

Any of our training classes can be taught at your facility as long as the facility meets the following requirements:

- Classroom must be able to accommodate at least 20 students comfortably
- LCD projector, screen, and whiteboard or flip-chart, and markers must be available in the classroom
- Electrical power and power strips to support up to 20 laptop computers and other computer equipment

In-House Training Benefits

Training Customization

In-house training can be designed to focus on the issues critical to your agency using the equipment and tools available to your personnel.

Cost Effectiveness

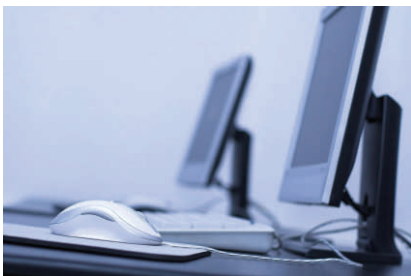

It can cost less per student for in-house training than off-site training. Off-site training expenses for air fare, hotels, meals, tuition, and other expenses add up quickly. Multiply this cost for several of your personnel and off-site courses can become expensive. The cost of in-house training includes all course materials and equipment, and instructor travel costs and accommodation. There are no hidden fees or added charges.

Time Savings

With the training conducted at your facility, personnel will not need to take extra days to travel to an off-site location. In-house training allows indispensable personnel to get the training they need yet still be accessible should you need them.

Teamwork

Learning together creates a cooperative environment and enhances teamwork within your agency. Additionally, by focusing on your agency's procedures and capabilities, everyone learns the same instruction and approach for improved consistency.
